Replacing the Big Train as Manager of the Tribe, Fighting Steve O'Neill Faces a Big Choice in Turning the Indians Pennant-ward

BY PHILIP MARTIN

You'll always be the Big Train for us, Fighting Steve O'Neill. We can see ourselves that he's a man who knows how to get a team winning. I've seen him do it with three different teams. He's got a way of getting a team to work hard and win. He's a great coach, a great manager. He's got a way of getting the best out of his players. We're going to see a big change in the Indians this year. They're going to be a lot better team with Fighting Steve O'Neill in charge.

Dr. E. G. Lewis Walker had a bone broken in the leg in a game against the Athletics. He's going to be out for a few weeks, but he'll be back in no time. He's a great player, a great team leader. We're going to miss him, but we know he'll be back.

J. A. Weidemeyer, the manager of the American Association's Columbus club, has been named the new manager of the Chicago Cubs. He's got a lot of experience, a lot of knowledge. He's going to be a great manager for the Cubs.

There is still a vast amount of inexperienced players, complete novices. Bitterness on the part of many of the customers has increased, as the failure of the Babe's last year has left a bitter taste in the mouths of the baseball fans.

The team was riddled by inexperience last year, particularly to the national pastime. The team was in a constant state of flux, and the fans were left wondering who would come out as the winner. This year, the team has a much better chance to succeed. The fans are excited, and they're looking forward to a great season.

The job of coordinating the new baseball team, with all of its new players, has been a challenge for the new manager. He's got a lot of work to do, but he's up to the task. He's a great manager, and he's going to lead the team to victory. We're going to see a great season this year.

DANGEROUS HOUSES

To the average citizen, homes may appear safe. To the oceanographer, however, they are threats. To the eyes of the master's eyes, they are home. Every home has its secrets. Every home has its dangers. Every home is a house. Every house is a home. Every home is a danger.

The National Education Council has published a report on home safety. It states that three homes in ten are unsafe. This is a startling statistic. It is a reminder to all of us to be aware of the dangers that may lurk within our own homes.

Adams House

John Adams, who has been treated for a torn leg, is expected to be back in about a month. He was last seen walking his dog in the park.
